Mission

At Ben Air, we're on a mission to burst free of the transportation industry's old-fashioned limits and restrictions.

Vision

We're pilots. We see better than 20/20. And our vision is of a world where anything can go anywhere.

Ben Air Difference

Forged by former military personnel with a history of getting things done, Ben Air is a different kind of transport and logistics company. With the full range of modern technology at hand, we believe that anything can go anywhere—and if it can go, it should go.

We're not a budget option. Let's get that out of the way right now. Ben Air's team is made of world-class experts, people who are better at what they do than anyone else who has ever lived. Our level of expertise doesn't come cheap, so feel free to shop around. If you truly need dangerous goods air transportation, we know you'll be back. Turn to us when literally no other transport company will even touch your shipment.

Our Pilots

Our pilots are fresh from the world's finest armed forces. These guys (and a few gals) are used to air combat maneuvering in some of the world's thorniest arenas, so they can more than handle our souped-up cargo planes.

For your safety and theirs, we don't release the names of our employees. Come on, do you really need to know the name of your delivery guy? Rest assured that our pilots come to us with decorated military backgrounds. These world-class fliers could have gone absolutely anywhere after their discharges. (One of our pilots has a buddy who's now on the space station.) Count yourself lucky that they looked at every option, and decided that flying your dangerous goods shipment was their best choice.

Our Team

Dangerous goods logistics involves more than just a flight. How do your goods get from your warehouse to wherever it is they're going? You need door-to-door dangerous goods logistics support for your shipment. Let us handle that for you.

Our logistics team features professionals pulled from some of the most ruthlessly efficient industries on the modern market. From pharmaceutical sales reps to border coyotes, hackers to organized crime drop-outs, big-box executives to some guy who won't shut up about blockchain, we're like a montage from your favorite heist movie.

With almost equal amounts of board room experience and federal prison time, our full logistics team can handle any problem with any dangerous goods shipment. Yes, even yours. Just tell Ben Air your problems and watch them all disappear.

What We Ship

We ship absolutely everything, no matter how dangerous, radioactive, or deadly. Assuming your package has a physical form, we will wrangle it onto an airplane and take it anywhere on Earth. (Low Earth orbit options are available upon request.)

Is your shipment skirting the legal lines of various jurisdictions? At Ben Air, we don't really care about that. Our well-versed legal team can help you work around tariffs, embargoes, immigration offices, regulatory groups, and whatever else might stand in your way. Whatever you're shipping, count on our experience in dangerous goods logistics to deliver.

We're comfortable handling your weird biohazards. If you have anything contagious or toxic, our crew simply straps into full biohazard suits. We don't question why you're shipping whatever you're shipping, so if you need additional support, just let us know. We can provide lab techs, veterinarians, and human-grade medical professionals as part of your full-service dangerous goods shipment package.

Don't worry about any radioactive items. We certainly don't: that's why we have lead boxes. Our pilots and crew are more than prepared to haul around your radioactive items, delivering them to your secret lab, your enemy's summer home, or wherever else.

Does your shipment pose a deadly risk to the people and property around it? We're used to that. We do insist that you disclose the full risks of your item during contract negotiations, but we've never refused a customer due to any level of perceived "danger." Whatever your item is, we guarantee we've seen something worse.

Our Founder

Ben Yarborough founded Ben Air after a 20-year naval career as a Master Explosive Ordnance Disposal Technician. After disposing of his very first explosive device, Ben thought, what's so hard about that?

After taking care of a few more explosives, Ben eventually discovered that more traditional thinkers were very cautious around things that might explode. Combine that hesitance with another commonly held fear—fear of flying—and Ben realized there was an opportunity vacuum in the dangerous goods air transportation industry.

Ben Air was born.

Ben's naval experience forms the model for our transport teams. In addition to working with explosive ordinance, Ben trained as a SCUBA and mixed gas diver and a Naval Parachutist. This well-rounded tactical background prepared him for any situation. We expect our pilots and transport experts to be just as dangerously multitalented, a philosophy that has served us well in the field.
